Overview

Did a salesperson knock on your door and promise free rooftop solar panels at no cost to you?

Or say you'll never have to pay another electricity bill because government programs, grants, or rebates cover your solar installation?

It's likely a scam. FILE - Newly-installed solar energy panels hang on the exterior of a residential house. (Photo by Sean Gallup/Getty Images) SEATTLE — Scammers across the U. are going door-to-door, pitching “free” solar energy systems. Many homeowners never get any solar equipment installed; those who do often. Rather, when you pay your taxes, you can count your solar use as a credit that decreases your federal income tax. The Inflation Reduction Act was passed in 2022, and you should read about its clauses and specifics if you're thinking about committing to solar power. Find a network of trusted. Some schemes involve collecting your social security number or contact information under the pretense of qualifying for solar incentives, while others hide long-term obligations inside a power purchase agreement. Another deceptive strategy is the bait-and-switch tactic.
