

Free photovoltaic panels installed in factory buildings

Overview

However, the federal government does not offer any programs for free home solar panel installations nor does the government require companies to grant solar panels for free to customers. Modules may be relatively stable, but labor, plan review requirements, and interconnection steps are getting more complex. Starting early helps you control timeline. Companies that offer “free” solar panels are typically offering solar lease agreements, so you can reap the benefits of solar-powered electricity without dealing with the upkeep and maintenance of the panels.
