

The photovoltaic panel is broken and you need insurance

Overview

Homeowners insurance may cover solar panels under your policy's dwelling coverage if your panels are permanently attached to the roof and damaged due to certain covered perils, often excluding wind and hail. Ground-mounted solar panels may be covered under other structures coverage. Coverage varies dramatically by installation type: Roof-mounted panels are typically covered under dwelling coverage with higher limits, while ground-mounted systems fall under “other structures” coverage limited to just 10% of your dwelling coverage—potentially leaving expensive systems. Adding solar panels to your home is a major investment, and protecting that system starts with understanding solar panel insurance. In many cases, you won't need an additional add-on or “rider” that would impact your plan or premiums. Solar installation insurance offers complete protection against an unexpected financial blow, which can be caused by partial or complete damage to the panel system, theft, or an accident directly related to the solar installation. As a solar panel owner, you're probably looking to avoid unnecessary. First things first—most standard homeowners insurance policies do cover solar panel damage.
